

Rachel Warner

YEAR OF CALL: 2023

Prior to commencing pupillage, Rachel Warner served as an adjudicator for The Pensions Ombudsman, assisting with a broad range of pension disputes, including transfer delays, death benefits, and pension liberation cases.

Before this, Rachel worked for Leicestershire Police in the serious crime department, handling cases ranging from robbery and drug offences to attempted murder. She also worked for the National Crime Agency within CEOP (the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre) and was part of the team that investigated David Wilson, who was later convicted of 96 sex offences.

During her time at The Pensions Ombudsman, Rachel taught a class on criminal appeals to undergraduate students and members of the public for the Freedom Law Clinic. She also served as Vice President of the Inner Temple Mooting Committee from 2024 to 2025.
